

Digital Video Systems adds to team

Leading digital video specialist Digital Video Systems Ltd has appointed a new Business Development Manager.

John Griffiths joined the team at DVS in early September. John was most recently responsible for corporate media solutions at BT and based from within BT's Media & Broadcast group his portfolio included digital signage, business TV and streaming solutions on a global basis. Having sold, implemented and managed projects and networks for some of the UK's biggest organisations including the largest business TV network in Europe, John brings a wealth of experience in large multi-site, multi-national projects including sales, project management and operations.

Commenting on the appointment Peter Topping, Director, DVS, said "We have a number of large new projects under way presently and John brings knowledge and experience that will be important to us moving forward in supporting our existing client base and in new projects."

"It is great to join the excellent team at DVS and I look forward to bringing my skills and experience to DVS. With such a range of projects just starting and ongoing it will be a very exciting time for me and the company." said John Griffiths.
